New Style Points
In Coat Details

In describing coat styles for fall, "straight and slim" almost goes without saying. This silhouette may be taken for granted in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred. In the hundredth case "slim and flaring" will tell the story. It is in details of cut, shape of sleeves, collar, methods of decoration and choice of fabric that we find features that distinguish this fall's models.

Pile fabrics continue in great favor, but they have been joined by heavy ribbed silks and certain novelty weaves in wool materials. In colors all the warm browns, dark greens, some deep reds and castor shades are among the rivals of black. A handsome brown coat is pictured, with dyed squirrel collar and banding on the modish sleeves. It is further enriched by a braid embroidery in self color.

BIG SAFE ROBBERY IS REPORTED FOILED

The authorities have captured the burglar responsible for a long list of unsolved robberies recently which have netted rich hauls.

Contrary to general opinion, the thief is a mere lad of about twenty-five years whose name is withheld at the request of his old mother who died of a broken heart at the home of Mr. Daniel Corvan yesterday. It will be remembered that Corvan turned his home over to be used while the Fairfield postoffice was undergoing repairs.

The old lady, an inmate of the institution, on her death-bed handed over to Corvan a considerable sum of money, the result of her son's hauls, saying that she was sure that she could trust Corvan to see that the money was returned to its rightful owners. She also added that she had known all the time that the money her boy was giving her was stolen and that she had asked him time and again to tell her where he got it—but the wicked boy refused.

Anyone knowing of a person who has lost a considerable sum of money within the past few weeks will find it to their advantage to go to the Amusu Theatre on either Thursday or Friday. They will discover something of great interest to them.

LATE WATERMELONS STILL COMING TO LOCAL MARKET

Though a slight chill in the atmosphere following the rains during the week, remind us that fall is near at hand, the evidences of summer remain with us in the form of ripe watermelons on the local market.

Excellent melons, as well flavored as any during the entire season, have been sold during the week at around 20 cents.

At the Times office, however, there is an exhibition a mammoth melon sent in by J. B. Wright, of Ivanhoe. When at its best the melon weighed around sixty pounds, which was nearly three weeks ago. Though now considerably past the zenith of its usefulness for the palate, it still is attractive and many of our patrons stop and admire it in the window.

Mr. Wright always grows big melons.

We don't know how the balance of the men in Statesboro feel about it, but we're glad we're coming back so we'll have room to park some of the things we now carry around in our pants pockets.

Uncle Sam will again try to make the silver dollar popular. If any dollars that's worth 100 cents isn't popular.

According to a fashion note men's styles will be plain this fall. But last winter's overcoat will still prevail in bany influence.

THE WRONG NAME GIVEN
Mr. and Mrs. Shellie T. Waters announce that their daughter born August 28th will be called Martha Foy.

I want to take this method of expressing to the voters of Bulloch county my appreciation for their support in the primary of last week. Having again been declared your nominee for the Georgia legislature, I pledge my continued best efforts to serve every interest of the county.

FRIENDLY CHAT

THE AMUSU ASKS WHAT'S IN A "HELLO?"
Is it cheerful greeting, dull passing or surprised comment or answer to salutation? Whatever may be hidden in that one word, or any other, for that matter, gives direct clue to your state of mind, of health, of spirit; for the tone you use must be carefully watched if it is to conceal the truth about your feeling and being. When you are tired, when you are bored, when blue, then is the time to re-charge your system. Don't wait until you are sick to remedy the ill. No better tonic exists than the movie screen for cases of weariness of the mind, and pestering cares of the body. A reeling headache is often cured by a reel of film. There is nothing too good for our patrons; we are always ready to search for and get the best in pictures, and always extend you a warm and sincere welcome to the AMUSU THEATER.

REPORT BIG WEALTH IN BLUEBERRY CROP
GEORGIA VARIETY SAID TO BE SUPERIOR TO THOSE GROWN IN FLORIDA.
(Jesup Sentinel.)

Announcement that the famous Sapp blueberry orchard in West Florida was sold in July for a thousand dollars the acre, and that home-seekers from all over the country are flocking to that region to grow blueberries, comes from a reliable railroad source. It is particularly interesting to South Georgians because two investigators, Geo. D. Howe, of Baxley, and Llyod Scott, of Blackshear, after several seasons of exhaustive research, now announce that South Georgia possesses a supply of the same variety of berries.

Floridians have claimed that the "Rabbiteye" blueberry is confined to a small area in the western part of the state. Their claim was supported by various horticulturists and botanists who based their opinion on the incomplete surveys of the flora of Georgia by early botanical authorities. Messrs. Scott and Howe have hunted and fished over much of Southeast Georgia, and when visiting the Sapp orchard, they were sure they had seen the same berry in their home area. This section has numerous varieties of blueberries which our people call "high-bush huckleberries," but botanists had never found the variety that Floridians call "Rabbiteye" over here.

This summer these men have had with them in various places in South Georgia some of the most famous botanists and horticulturists in the country. They were shown the "Rabbiteye" variety in great profusion in the isolated berry section where a large occurrence had been found after more than three years search. Comparison with the Florida type indicates that the Georgia berry is an even more attractive market population on account of its earlier ripening, its quality, color and flavor. As South Georgia has much better transportation and labor facilities than the blueberry section of West Florida, which is a rather thinly populated and isolated section, it is evident that an early and better berry production here can go further with the industry and make it much more profitable to the grower.

Under cultivation the blueberry increase in both size and yield remarkably. A bulletin of the Sea-board Air Line refers to an old bush from which 90 quarts were picked in a season and yields of a bushel have not been uncommon. In the Sapp orchard 280 bushes about 15 years old that stood on less than an acre bore 4,500 quarts in 1923 that were sold for 25 cents per quart at the station. As this berry requires little cultivation and moderate fertilization, no spraying nor pruning, it is undoubtedly true that the net profit there was larger than was ever before made on an acre of land in the South.

Blueberries have been cultivated in a small way for many years now and all the requirements of the plant are well-known. Yields run high and the berry is a perfect shipper by open express to distant markets where high prices are always obtained. When Floridians found a native bush fruit of high commercial value in a very few years every wild plant of value was put into the fields and under cultivation. Only one type is valuable for the purpose, but there is enough of them available in South Georgia to give us a great industry in just a few years. Well-drained sandy land and the higher loams are local for blueberries and a planting will come into profitable bearing in three years from setting.

LOST FINGER FROM FALL AGAINST CIRCUULAR SAW
Aubert Brannen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Brannen, lost a finger from one hand and was otherwise considerably cut about the hand when he fell against a circular saw at his father's mill near Nevila station. He was operating the saw and had shut off the power for the saw to stop. It was slowly revolving when he stumbled against the saw.

BULLOCH COUNTY NEGRO FISHES IN LAKE ERIE
Holmes Nance is colored man more or less well known in Bulloch county, having formerly resided in the Hagin district.

That he has for the past few months made his home in the north was made known to friends by receipt of a letter from him a few days ago. In this letter Holmes made the statement that he had been north for four months and had not had a single day's work in all that time. He said that there were 30,000 negroes in the same community out of employment, and things were beginning to look blue to him. His nearest recreation, he said, and the nearest approach to a gainful occupation he has engaged in is fishing in Lake Erie. He says it is fine sport, but intimates that Ogechee river fish are more to his liking.

NEGROES ARE TOLD TO STAY IN SOUTH
Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 22.—Several northern cities are wrestling with the problem of preventing more Southern negroes moving to them under the mistaken impression that work is plentiful and wages good in the North, it was pointed out here today by railroad passenger agents. In most of the cities of the North, reports received here state, there are already thousands of idle negroes, most of them recent arrivals from the South and nearly all of them will become public charges during the winter, with inevitable suffering on the part of the whites.

"For Southern negroes to consider joining the many already in the North and thus aggravating the situation as well as facing almost certain distress and disappointment, is United States Department of Agriculture announced today.

With the exception of some of the more extreme southerly points such as the Gulf Coast of Texas, the bureau announcement said, emergency was rather light, being only from one-fifth to one-tenth of last year's. Weevils, therefore were not sufficiently abundant to cause any particularly injury to the bottom crops of cotton.

Absence of rain, which particularly was noticeable from Alabama westward, insured a high degree of climatic control of the pest, accentuated by the unusually small plant yield of the season.

While there may be in almost all localities a few fields which produced a more or less normal growth of cotton and were some what damaged by weevils, these are the exception rather than the rule. At Tallulah, La., where the Bureau of Entomology maintains an experimental station, there is a normal season some weevil damage in almost every field of cotton; this year not over half a dozen fields out of more than 500 under observation have experienced any damage whatever from the weevil.

"Recent rains may have somewhat stimulated the multiplication of the weevils, but the majority of crops growth of the season, according to the bureau which explained that in many localities of the cotton belt there was no precipitation other than mid-August continued the bureau so completely mature that this will chiefly affect the probable abundance of weevils entering hibernation. In Georgia and South Carolina weevil damage has been very much heavier, though probably not so heavy as in these states during the two preceding years."

MANY FROM STATESBORO WILL VISIT LOUISVILLE
Many persons from this community will attend the big religious services which are now in progress at Louisville, Ga., under the direction of Dr. George W. Truett, of Dallas, Texas. Dr. Truett is recognized as one of the most powerful revivalists in the entire country. The meeting at Louisville, which will continue throughout the coming week, is being sponsored by all the churches of that town—Baptist, Methodist and Presbyterian.

SMALL DAMAGE DONE BY THE BOLL WEEVIL

REPORTS OF CONDITIONS IN COTTON BELT SHOW BUMPER CROP PRODUCED.
Washington, Sept. 21.—Abnormal dry weather in many sections and lower emergence combined with other favorable conditions in the cotton belt to make boll weevil damage unusually small this season, the Bureau of Entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture announced today.

With the exception of some of the more extreme southerly points such as the Gulf Coast of Texas, the bureau announcement said, emergency was rather light, being only from one-fifth to one-tenth of last year's. Weevils, therefore were not sufficiently abundant to cause any particularly injury to the bottom crops of cotton.

Absence of rain, which particularly was noticeable from Alabama westward, insured a high degree of climatic control of the pest, accentuated by the unusually small plant yield of the season.

YOUNG MAN INJURED BY BALE OF COTTON

Gordon Rushing, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Rushing, was seriously injured Tuesday at the cotton warehouse when he was crushed by a bale of cotton falling from a wagon upon him. He was carried first to the sanitarium, but has so far recovered that he has been able to return home.

pend upon the uncertainty of having dry weather this fall and extreme cold this winter.

The dry fall of 1923 covered all fields except the very low wet spots in every community and the cold in January covered all fields. If the early destruction of stalks is to be as beneficial as last season's weather conditions, it must apply to all the fields in a community. Any farmer can reduce his year's weevil infestation by killing all his own stalks but if he is to have no weevils at all his neighbors' stalks must also be destroyed. One of the most profitable cooperative projects that can be initiated in any cotton growing community is that of the complete destruction of all green cotton stalks three weeks before frost. The stalks can be killed either by cutting, by grazing with livestock, by turning them under deeply with a plow or by ripping them out of the ground with a plow. Cutting is not usually as satisfactory as the other methods. Grazing with livestock is dangerous if the cotton has been poisoned late and little or no rain has fallen to wash the poison off. Flowing the stalks up is much faster than plowing them and also is the method of stalk destruction most frequently practiced.

RACING PROGRAM TO BE STRONG FEATURE OF FAIR

The racing program for the fair this fall will be furnished largely by local horses, and the rivalry will be keen from the first heat to the finish.

Dr. Stewart has five horses and they are in trim. He has built, near Portal, a track where he has kept his horses in racing form all the summer. Dr. Stewart is coming back to win first money prizes.

F. C. Parker and Jno. B. Fields have five and they are fit for the track now. They two are determined to cross the line in the lead. There is going to be some racing.

Mr. Bowles, of Augusta, has already entered seven horses and others seeking entrances. Come see them race to a finish.

HEALTH OFFICIALS PROTECT VISITORS TO FAIR

For the utmost protection of the thousands that have been attracted to fairs, expositions and cattle shows, state, county and town health officials have been unusually vigilant this season in guarding against disease infections. It has been recognized that illnesses that play havoc during the late fall and winter often gain ground through the carelessness of the dispensers of sodas and other beverages at these gatherings. Public officials have acted with strictness to prevent infections from common cups and glasses.

During the recent New York State Fair held at Syracuse, Dr. F. W. Sears, district sanitary superintendent, instituted a rigorous supervision at the various concessions. Common glasses, improperly washed between users, he says, are responsible to a large degree for the transmission of tuberculosis, scarlet fever, typhoid fever, typhoid fever, diphtheria, tonsillitis, pneumonia, influenza, grippe, measles, common colds and infantile paralysis.

Because of an outbreak of infantile paralysis in Syracuse, Dr. Sears supplied all concessionaires with copies of the regulations that prohibit the use of cups that are not carefully sterilized after each user. Also, he appointed a force of inspectors to see that the law was obeyed.

Other cities and towns throughout the country have taken similar precautions so that visitors to the fairs would not carry home with them infections that might spread disease in their communities.

THE REVIVAL CONTINUES AT METHODIST CHURCH

The revival services which have been in progress at the Methodist church for several days will continue through next Sunday.

While the weather has been very inclement almost every day since the meeting commenced, yet no service has been missed. Some of the conversions have been very large. The attendance at practically every service has been good.

Dr. Charles Lane has delighted all who have heard his sermons. Every one has been both entertained and edified by the splendid gospel messages which he has delivered. It is the judgment of those who have attended the meeting that Statesboro has but rarely, if ever, been visited by a minister who preaches with such clearness and force.

Those who have not heard Dr. Lane should take advantage of the opportunity which they will have the remaining days of this meeting. He will be here through Sunday, probably preaching his last sermon Sunday evening.

Have been thirty and forty members have been added to the membership roll of the church since the services commenced. Between fifty and sixty new members have been added to the roll since the beginning of the conference year. There will probably be a number of others to make application for membership in the church before the meeting closes.

The music for these services is being furnished by the choir of the Statesboro Methodist church, with assistance from members of other churches in the city. Solos, duets, quartets, etc., are heard from time to time. The male quartet will sing Sunday morning next.

All of the people of Statesboro are urged to attend.

ORNAMENTAL SHRUBS FOR HOME IMPROVEMENT

The chief difference between a beautiful park and the ordinary valley or hill-side lies in the selection and arrangement of ornamental plantings. The thing that makes one town more beautiful than another, or that causes one section of the same city to be more attractive than other sections, is due primarily to the selection of the shrubs and trees, and the lack of the use of ornamental plantings. There is no external condition that goes further to convert an ordinary house into an attractive home than the use of natural plantings.

All normal human beings have an instinctive taste for natural beauty and intuitively respond to it. Beautiful surroundings call for a response from the inner nature of a man and cause him to see a new light on the world and to have a more favorable disposition towards his associates.

In the final analysis, lack of attractiveness of the home is why the home becomes monotonous and the occupant is tempted to abandon the place and find contentment elsewhere. People like anything that is attractive and are bored with unattractive objects. Why not beautify the home for the sake of beauty itself?

Most readers are confused or discouraged by the long names by which the nurserymen call ornamental shrubs and discard the selection even before it is made; others read all of the descriptions but are lost as to which species to select and thus give up the task; while still a few familiarize themselves with the names, shapes, blossoming season, growing habits and general adaptability of a half dozen shrubs described by reliable nurserymen, plant and are for them according to directions, and a few seasons their home is noted for its beauty and attractiveness throughout the community.

Properly placing shrubs around a homestead is a comparatively simple task. In fact, the very first rule to follow is to make it simple, and then make it natural or arrange it as near as possible like nature would have it. For a small home lawn, not more than 100 shrubs should be used.

Kind should be arranged in groups near the corners of the lawn and about the base of the buildings. Shrubs may also be set to a hedge form to add grace to the picture or to hide unsightly objects. Never place a group of shrubs in the center of an open lawn. Every plant should be selected and placed for a purpose; some for their attractive foliage, some for their blossoms and few for their fruit. Do not mix plants that are too much unlike; evergreens should be grouped to themselves, while deciduous shrubs, or shrubs which shed their leaves in winter, should be grouped together or grouped so as to form a foreground for the evergreens.

For the southern homestead the following will furnish a list sufficiently large for selected plantings: Deciduous—Spirea Van Rensselaer, myrtle, deutzia, Forsythia, lilac, hydrangea, dogwood, Amelanchier, privet, wrightia, Spirea thumbergia, Japanese quince.

Evergreens—Abelia, Japanese privet, arbutus, boxwood, Deodora cedar.

PATRIOTIC OVERFLOW

Hoboken, N. J., Sept.—Extraordinary mobbing taken by some Americans to express their patriotism was censured by West Hoboken unit of The American Legion Auxiliary recently, when Mrs. W. C. Asper, president of the unit, introduced a resolution denouncing the use of models of Washington, Lincoln and Roosevelt in making novelty cakes of soap which are being sold in New York department stores.

Mrs. Asper said she found miniature busts of the former presidents on sale at the toilet articles counter of a New York store. Upon examination, she found that the busts were soap replicas of our national heroes "made in Germany." Mrs. Asper declared that Americans who sell and buy the soap figures are more guilty of the indignity than are the Germans who make them.

Pretty Caps to Aid the Cause of Beauty

Our evening faces and our morning faces are not always equally "easy to look at." Evening faces usually have much the advantage because of pretty framing in careful hairdressing and costume ornaments. But the morning face may rival it. There are many pretty breakfast caps whose only mission is to help the cause of beauty in the morning. Two of them, shown here, have lately arrived in the bright company of bonnet headwear. The cap at the top, of dotted net, lace, ribbon and chiffon plating, covers the culture (or lack of culture) completely, with lace about the face and frills of plaited chiffon falling over the ears. The other cap is called a "wave retainer" and is made of narrow ribbon tied in little work pattern. This makes one of the most adorable of night caps as well as a cheerful affair for the breakfast table, and is much appreciated by the bobbed-haired.

Rev. N. Nicholievich

According to Sir Walter Scott, the phrase "right as my glove" signified that pledging a glove was a sign of good faith, or taking one's oath. Many other attributes were assigned to a glove. It was worn in the hat, a testimony to ancient times that its wearer was a good farmer. The glove has always signified dignity, especially in the traditions of the Church of England. When a consecration of a bishop took place the archbishop was preceded with a glove. They were of lavender color with golden fringe. This hand-dress was also always hung on the pews of those who died early and were buried in the church. The glove was a mark of death, enemy or revenge. The familiar "old shoe" of the wedding is a tried symbol of good luck. How the custom ever originated is not certain, but it is believed by many to be a felicitous attack upon the bridegroom, has gone to San Francisco to combat in the courts the attempt of the Soviet synd of Moscow to seize church property valued at nearly half a million dollars in the United States.

OLD SUPERSTITIONS ARE STILL PRACTICED

Potency of Ring, Glove, Pin and the Old Shoe.

Richmond, Va.—The life banishment from Princess Anne county, Va., of Annie Rogers because she was said to have killed the mules of her enemies with a magic wand illustrates the same fetichlike spirit which causes men to entertain, according to Evelyn Harris, of the Southern Bell Telephone Company, who was in attendance and who has just returned to Atlanta after a six week's tour of Europe. "London hospitality was more like Southern hospitality than anything I have seen," Mr. Harris said. "Any idea the Americans may have had before crossing the water as to London's maintaining a cool and distant air was completely dispelled. "Times of distinction and grandeur were thrown open to the Americans. Parties were given them in Buckingham Palace, the House of Parliament and other places. The Prince of Wales, the Lord Mayor of London and others high in national circles exerted themselves in making the

As a curative the ring is also cherished. It is still used by the European peasants in following the advice, "Use amulets against aches," which Sir Thomas Browne gave his patients more than 300 years ago. Silver rings are especially useful in curing cramps, fits and epileptic attacks, the simple English housewife believes. Lead and quicksilver rings, moreover, are highly prized as enemies to headaches.

Quaint Old Customs.

Many quaint old customs and superstitions featuring the glove still survive. A pair of gloves was placed on a lone mole as a means of driving away or opening a fair in bygone days and this custom still continues in many parts of England. In Saxony, too, moreover, the gauntlet was used as a token of the privilege of holding a market and as a mark of the king's consent.

Still another theory is that which allows the wedding shoe to become the symbol of authority and dominion over the bride by the husband. To receive a shoe in Biblical times indicated the conferral of ownership and, as the return of the shoe signified the relinquishing of it. In this period the father always kept the discarded shoe of his daughter as a symbol of his possession and it is believed by some that the familiar practice at modern weddings is only the persistence of the old custom in which the father threw the shoe at his new son-in-law as a sign of surrendering his proprietorship over the bride. Stockings, like shoes, have many legends and beliefs woven about them. To wear a stocking inside out is still regarded as lucky. Bad luck, however, overtakes the unfortunate who finds out her mistake before taking off the stocking. Good luck always awaits the person who has the wisdom of putting the right stocking on first. Woe unto him or her if the left is put on before the right. Even pins have been potent talismans in the past. Anyone having a bitter enemy who he wanted to punish had to do nothing but make a rude effigy of his foe. After inscribing the name of the enemy on the effigy, all that was needed was to stick it full of pins, each pinhead causing pain in that part of the victim's anatomy which his miniature was already being stabbed.

Wishing wells are still popular trying places for the lovers of Normandy. Sweethearts, according to tradition, will have all their wishes fulfilled by the simple expedient of making the wish and then dropping a crooked pin in the well.

VISITORS ENGLAND PRAISE LONDON HOSPITALITY

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 15.—The outstanding impression obtained by a majority of the 1,300 delegates of the Associated Clubs of the World at the recent convention in London was the cordiality of the English and the sincere and successful effort of the nobility and London's leading business men to entertain, according to Evelyn Harris, of the Southern Bell Telephone Company, who was in attendance and who has just returned to Atlanta after a six week's tour of Europe. "London hospitality was more like Southern hospitality than anything I have seen," Mr. Harris said. Americans feel comfortable. "Everywhere the leading business men of London exhibited the keenest desire to get American ideas, particularly in advertising. "And on the other hand they showed plainly that they liked the Americans and hoped Americans would understand the English. "The convention was a forceful factor in cementing ties of friendship between the two nations. Mr. Harris, visited London, Paris, Edinburgh, Versailles, Nice, Rome, Monte Carlo, Venice and Switzerland. Mrs. Harris accompanied him. Reconstruction in France, according to Mr. Harris, has progressed more rapidly than he had expected and everyone in France seemed to be busy. "London is a man's town and Paris a woman's town," was the manner in which Mr. Harris compared the two cities of England and France. By that, he said, the activities and general atmosphere of London was appealing to men. On the other hand, the charm and beauty of France struck a responsive chord among women.

Soft Woolly Coats for Small Girls

The steadfastness of Mary's little lamb reappears in her new winter coat—perhaps he contributed his fleece toward making it. At any rate, every where that Mary goes the coat is sure to go, and particularly to school.

Many soft, woolly fabrics are used this fall, in the cozy, all-round service coats for little girls—camel's hair, flannel and chinchilla cloths.

A fine model appears in the picture, with muffer collar and front fastening that will convert it into a double-breasted coat, when winter comes. It is smart and pretty in tan flanneling cloth. If Mary acquires this coat she will need no other.

Mrs. Hollis came as a visitor to the club and talked to the ladies about the Georgia Normal school, asking the club and individuals for co-operation in matters of interest to the school.

For the convenience of a good many club members, it was decided that the meetings would in the future be held at the Jaekel Hotel instead of at the school house as before.

After the business meeting a most interesting program was given. Mrs. H. B. Strange gave a very helpful talk on "What to do With Sunday for the Family."

Mrs. Edwin Kuykendall gave some fine points on "Feeding the Family."

Mrs. W. C. Parker gave a very inspiring talk on "The Garden," ending with an appeal to the ladies to plant flowers to cultivate their gardens and make them more beautiful and artistic.

A vocal solo was given by Miss Thelma Newton, accompanied by Miss Ruth McDougald, after which refreshments were served by the hostesses.

WOMAN'S CLUB.

The Woman's Club held their regular meeting Thursday, Sept. 18th, with the president, Mrs. A. J. Moorey, at her home on North Main street.

The attendance was good and great interest was manifested in developing plans for making this the most successful year in the history of the club.

Mrs. Hollis came as a visitor to the club and talked to the ladies about the Georgia Normal school, asking the club and individuals for co-operation in matters of interest to the school.

For the convenience of a good many club members, it was decided that the meetings would in the future be held at the Jaekel Hotel instead of at the school house as before.

FAIR ENCOURAGES INDIVIDUAL ENTRIES

CANNING CLUB WORK BIG ATTRACTION AT SAVANNAH—SHORT COURSE SCHOLARSHIP.

Savannah, Ga., Sept. 30.—Development of the individual entries of canning club work of the Georgia State Fair advanced to such a stage that the management has decided to make a specialty of this exhibit this year in order to show the fair patrons what quality of products can be raised in small gardens. There will be special prizes, and the departmental rules will govern the exhibits entirely.

Each club member contesting for any of these prizes must have cultivated a twentieth acre under the joint direction of the State College of Agriculture and the United States Department of Agriculture, and must submit a daily record book, a booklet containing history of her year's work, together with an exhibit in one of the classes named below. Only one girl from any county will be allowed to enter any class. No girl may enter for more than one prize. The exact number and kind of specimens required must be exhibited by every contestant. Each specimen must have 4-H brand label on it, bearing name and address of packer. Each contestant is required to follow the recipes given in bulletin of the Georgia State College of Agriculture and to have products of uniform high quality and salable value. A portion of each individual exhibit winning a state prize may be retained by the Georgia State College of Agriculture as a permanent exhibit. The girl's record book and stories are to be sent to the College of Agriculture on or before October 1.

Although a girl's perennial garden may not be in bearing she should submit the record of perennials planted and show the cultivation of an annual garden comparable to the perennial. The following exhibition will prove interesting to Georgians:

Popular Unit Count
Daily record book 20
History (booklet) 20
Business management, including yield, profit, care 20
Exhibit 30

The classes for this department consist of the following:

1—special tomato exhibit with club record; 2—general garden work with club record; 3—special Spanish pepper or pimiento exhibit with club record; 4—special peach or pear exhibit with perennial club record; 5—special fig-exhibit with perennial club record; 6—special grape exhibit with perennial club record; 7—special pickle and vinegar exhibit with perennial club record; 8—special fig package with perennial club record; 9—first year sewing exhibit with club record; 10—second year sewing exhibit with club record; 11—third year sewing with club record; 12—fourth year sewing exhibit with club record.

All of the foregoing work is for the individuals of the fair, conducted under the direction of Mrs. Katie Lanier Smith, district agent.

A special prize of a scholarship to the Georgia State College of Agriculture in Athens, will be awarded to the club girl making the best yearly record.

Mrs. Smith will also have charge of the county canning club work. The prizes for this will be larger than in the individual exhibits because it involves a wider variety of exhibits under different conditions.

GEORGIA NORMAL TEAM TO PLAY MARINE BOYS

Announcement has just been made that the Georgia Normal football team is to play a team from the Paris Island Marine Station, on the Normal School campus, Oct. 10th. This bid fair to be a game of unusual interest to local football fans, as the Marines always put up a stiff fight.

The Normal boys are working hard now in preparation for the Savannah High game Saturday and for the Marine game next week.

Nowadays it is a long lane that hasn't a few flippers parked along it.

YOUNG LAD KILLED BY ACCIDENTAL GUNSHOT

Talmadge Deal, aged about 12 years, was killed by the accidental discharge of a shotgun in the hands of a little playmate, Carvey Brinson, Tuesday afternoon at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. George Deal, near Clio.

The two boys were planning to go hunting. The Deal lad had loaded the gun unknown to the other boy. The Brinson lad carried the gun and as he started from the house was in some way discharged, the load striking the other boy in the lower part of the stomach, inflicting wounds from which he died in a few minutes.
